Simply cut the cheese into cubes of a size to suit the hook size. A 6mm cube sits nicely on a size 12
hook, a 12mm cube on size 10
and 8, and a 20mm cube on size
6 and larger. Crumbly cheeses

Such as Stilton and Danish Blue can be kneaded into paste form and then moulded around the hook. Very soft cheeses are sold in tubs and tubes as sandwich spread.

~~Say 'cheese' for chub fishing bait~~
If using firm cheese such as cheddar then break off a piece of cheese from the block of cheese and push your hook into it and leave the point showing. Simple as that. Rolling a piece of cheese between your fingers will soften it and it can then be moulded onto the hook as a paste. (make sure the hook point is showing).

The billhook is a relatively unknown preppers tool that will do many survival tasks and is often the preferred "larger Knife" being able to do the heavy duty survival work that is often needed with ease.. This "big knife" was traditionally used as a basic cutting tool on farms to trim bushes and hedges before the introduction of the powered hedge trimmers.

Choosing between hook sizes. Along with weight, yarn labels will also give a recommended hook size to use with the yarn. You can generally go up and down a hook size and still get a similar result. Using a smaller hook will usually give your project a stiffer feel, whereas using a larger hook will give more drape and movement.
